taking a novel approach that adapts Freud's theory of the primal crime this book examines a wealth of ethnographic data on the Gimi of the eastern highlands of Papua New Guinea focusing on women's lives myths and rituals women's and men's separate myths and rites may be read as a cycle of blame about which sex caused the ills of human existence and is still at fault however the author demonstrates that in public rites of exchange in which both sexes participate men appropriate and subvert women's usages as a ritual strategy to undo motherhood and confiscate children at puberty in doing so she reveals how gimi women both rebel against the male dominated social order and express understanding of why they also acquiesce the result of decades of fieldwork writing and reflection this book offers an analysis of gimi women s complex understanding of their situation and presents a nuanced picture of women in a society dominated by men it represents an important contribution to new guinea ethnography that will appeal to students and scholars of psychoanalysis gender studies and cultural social and psychoanalytic anthropology for approximately eight months during 1931 1932 anthropologist margaret mead lived with and studied the mountain arapesh a segment of the population of the east sepik province papua new guinea she found a culture based on simplicity sensitivity and cooperation in contrast to the aggressive arapesh who lived on the plains both the men and the women of the mountain settlements were found to be in mead s word maternal the mountain arapesh exhibited qualities that many might consider feminine they were in general passive affectionate and peaceloving though mead partially explains the male s femininity as being due to the type of nourishment available to the arapesh she maintains social conditioning to be a factor in the type of lifestyle led by both sexes mead s study encapsulates all aspects of the arapesh culture she discusses betrothal and marriage customs sexuality gender roles diet religion arts agriculture and rites of passage in possibly a portent for the breakdown of traditional roles and beliefs in the latter part of the twentieth century mead discusses the purpose of rites of passage in maintaining societal values and social control mead also discovered that both male and female parents took an active role in raising their children furthermore it was found that there were few conflicts over property the arapesh having no concept of land ownership maintained a peaceful existence with each other in his new introduction to the mountain arapesh paul b roscoe assesses the importance of mead s work in light of modern anthropological and ethnographic research as well as how it fits into her own canon of writings roscoe discusses findings he culled from a trip to papua new guinea in 1991 to clarify some ambiguities in mead s work his travels also served to help reconstruct what had happened to the arapesh since mead s historic visit in the early 1930s margaret mead 1901 1978 was associated with the american museum of natural history in new york for over fifty years becoming curator of ethnology in 1964 she taught at columbia university and the new school for social research as well as a number of other universities among her many books is Continuities in Cultural Evolution available from transaction publishers paul b roscoe is professor of anthropology at the university of maine he is a frequent contributor to anthropology journals including American Anthropologist American Ethnologist and Current Anthropology and is co editor with nancy lutkehaus of Gender Rituals Female Initiation in Melanesia the 1992 recipient of the royal anthropological institute s curl essay prize he has an archival specialization in ancient polynesia
